Reading Comprehension

Read the following passage, then answer the questions below.

In many cities around the world, people are looking for new ways to travel more efficiently and reduce pollution. One growing solution is the use of electric scooters, also known as e-scooters. These small vehicles run on rechargeable batteries and are usually rented through smartphone apps. Riders can pick them up at one location and leave them at another, making short trips quicker and more convenient.

Supporters of e-scooters say they help reduce traffic and are more eco-friendly than cars.

Because they use electricity instead of gasoline, they produce fewer greenhouse gases. They also make it easier for people to cover short distances without needing to drive. For instance, someone can ride an e-scooter from a bus stop to their workplace in just a few minutes.

However, critics argue that e-scooters are not always safe. Many riders do not wear helmets, and accidents can happen when scooters are used on crowded sidewalks or busy roads. In addition, the batteries must be recharged often, and collecting and charging thousands of scooters still creates environmental costs.

Overall, e-scooters are becoming a common sight in modern cities. Whether they are a perfect solution or just a temporary trend remains an open question

- The main purpose of e-scooters is to
 - provide an efficient and eco-friendly travel option
 - replace all cars in large and small cities
 - create jobs for people charging the scooters
 - encourage people to walk longer distances
- E-scooters are usually rented
 - through smartphone apps with location services
 - by visiting rental shops in shopping centers
 - from public transportation ticket machines
 - by calling special numbers for delivery
- E-scooters are useful because they
 - reduce traffic and produce fewer gases
 - replace buses and trains in big cities
 - are faster than trains and airplanes
 - never need recharging or repair work
- The disadvantage of e-scooters is that they
 - are too expensive for most travelers
 - may cause accidents on crowded streets
 - can only be used by young students
 - are banned in all major world cities
- The word "eco-friendly" in the second paragraph means " ".
 - Safe for the environment and less polluting
 - Very cheap and easy for many travelers
 - Highly modern and popular in rich cities
 - Extremely fast and good for competitions
- E-scooters still might harm the environment as
 - collecting and charging them uses resources
 - riders usually throw away old helmets
 - they can only be used during summer
 - they make people avoid walking completely
- According to the passage, we can infer about e-scooters that
 - their long-term role in cities is still uncertain
 - they will soon replace all public transportation
 - they are the safest travel option available today
 - their popularity is already declining everywhere

In today's fast-changing world, many organizations are searching for innovative ways to create a positive impact. One company, Eco-Vision, has gained attention for its sustainable mission. Instead of focusing only on profit, Eco-Vision works to reduce its carbon footprint by implementing renewable energy sources, such as solar panels and wind turbines.

Eco-Vision believes that small actions can create big changes. For example, employees are encouraged to work independently while still joining regular check-ins with their teams. This approach avoids "silos," or isolated groups, and helps everyone stay connected. The company also values tolerance and different perspectives. Leaders invite stakeholders to share ideas, even when opinions are complicated or conflicting.

By listening carefully, Eco-Vision creates a culture of respect and confidence.

In addition, the company organizes surveys and observations to track progress.

Employees report that the work environment is both motivating and enriching, since their efforts support a clear mission. The results have been impressive:

Eco-Vision has reduced its energy use by 40% and inspired other organizations to follow its example.
